All that you need is already within you, the seeker.
Everything is contained within you.

We greet you children of Light. We greet you at the middle of the greatest shift that has ever occurred on your world. You will be processing lifetimes worth of Karma in the coming days, and weeks ahead.

You are in the age of the great upheaval, where all things that have been hiding in the shadows must come forth in order to be processed, so all of you can let go. All the lessons of the past live in the now.

All the past hurts, traumas that have fractured your being and the collective, are seeing their last days, for the time of segregation is over.

You are moving rapidly into the phase where you will be in the process of remedying all that has caused destruction and decay on your world.

For thousands of years humanity has lived by a distorted perspective, which promoted segregation, separation from one self, from the environment, from each other and from God.

Even though your great religious institutions have preached the unconditional love of the Creator, throughout history their actions brought about the exact opposite, causing even more conflict between tribes and creeds.

There have been many conflicting beliefs that have been promoted in your culture, and in your day and age these distorted beliefs have reached their peak, for the forces that promoted such beliefs and activities wished to guide the collective in a direction which didn't serve humanity's best interests.

Even though the outcome of things has been decided, they chose not to surrender to the natural flow of things.

They have invested their entire being in the illusions of the ego mind, and one of these illusions is that you are above all creation. They have created a storyline where they have convinced themselves and others that they have a right to decide what's good for everyone, and thus you have all the distortion in your world.

Even the most highly advanced beings from your perspective, are not above you, all aspects of existence are equally valid and important. You are testing and experiencing things on your plain, as are we on ours, both are equally valid, both are equally important for the soul's growth.

All expressions of life are equally precious.

Instead of a preacher, be a teacher, who leads the way by example.

Live your life to the fullest, stay always true to yourself, and all who are in alignment with that path will find you to learn from you, and to assist you in your grow, through which they also evolve, and thus you are becoming each others catalysts, creating a snowball effect that affects the entire collective.

Be at peace, and find love in all moments. Even though the storm may rage around you, stay still, let it flow, find your center and all will pass in perfect order.

Stillness is of great value, just as silence.

Stay still, and observe yourself, take off the blindfolds or the rainbow glasses, and just see yourself for who you are. See yourself as an infinite cosmic being having an earthly experience, experiencing the greatest shift on Earth.

This simple practice is crucial in finding your center, in finding balance in your life. You are at the gateway of a new epoch, and in order to move forward you must collect all fragments of yourself.

Throughout your lifetimes, and across all earthly timelines, you have experienced many things, some caused a type of segregation, a fracture in your being. All of these challenging experiences may come back now in different forms to be released, so deep healing may take place.

Know that you have taken on a lot, by that we mean you've also inherited the generational Karma of the bloodline that you were born in.

This may seem overwhelming at first, for how could one clear so much in just one lifetime.

But rest assured, for the energies that are flowing through your world strongly encourage and assist such clearings. Now you have a golden opportunity to process lifetime's worth of karma in just weeks or days, and this time window may last for several weeks, after which things will slow down a bit, for by that time you have all reached a new plateau in your collective evolution.

Now is the time of the great cleansing, so proper healing may take place on all levels. All the fragmentation will be remedied, and all will integrate back, finding a new balance, so all can move on.

Stay centered and meditate upon the center of your heart.
Tune into your higher aspects and bring forth Heaven on Earth.
The time is now.

We leave you with that, be well children of Light,
A'ho Blessings.
