

Message from SIRIUS 27.03 2022

Perseverance, stamina, long lasting.

We greet you children of Light. The new Solar Flares are washing away the old energies in your world. All belief systems and ways of being are being challenged, for it is time to let them go.

All the things that you have been holding onto for many years or even lifetimes, may seem to fall apart, for their time is up.

All that which is based on illusions and distortion is fading away, for that energy is not compatible with the reality that you are all moving towards.

The solar flares and the energies that are present on your world are assisting the Shift, so it may occur more smoothly for all of you.

The turbulence that you are experiencing on your ride Home is due to resistance. Everything that is not representative of truth is fading away, making room for that which is lasting and enduring.

Many have based their entire lives on illusions that were propagated by your society; all of the ways of how you live, how you dress, who you are as a person were all based on illusions.

Your culture is very much based around having a physical experience; to seek fulfillment in a materialistic world, by indulging in the distractions of the senses.

Your Physical reality is very much real, in a sense that all its rules and regulations have an effect on your life experience there, but this is not all that can be experienced.

You are spiritual beings having a physical experience.

Some may get lost in the maze of illusion while you live on Planet Earth, but the Shift that has been orchestrated for many years is now awakening a large portion of your population.

Not everyone will be spiritually aware, but many beings in your lifetime will start to question the reality that surrounds them, paving the way for future generations that will be free to explore the great unknown, without society pressuring them to stay put and do as everyone else does.

You are the bridge that connects the old way of doing things and the new way.

It has been a challenging process for many of you.

All your lives you have lived from a perspective which was contrary to what the majority of your race has held up as truth, and you were pressured all your lives to adapt to the customs and ways of your culture, even though deep within it made no sense to you.

It is a difficult path, but well worth it, since by all of you choosing to stay true to who you are, you have successfully reached critical mass in the awakened souls here on Planet Earth.

You don't need the majority of your race to bring about lasting and profound change, for the manifestational energies of the masses are not as potent as your focused intent!

Your conscious manifestation is far stronger than the unconscious ones, for when you are awake and aware, you can utilize the creational laws of the cosmos in a conscious manner, to bring about a reality that you actually prefer to live in.

All of your hard work has paid off, even though you may perceive the opposite right now. Congratulations!

You are collapsing timelines, and right now both the Old and new Earth is present, and is there to be experienced!

It is up to you to choose what to perceive.

We are fully aware that your mass media has the habit of drawing your attention to things that are propagating fear and distortion, but regardless of their efforts, positive and lasting change is unfolding across your world.

You can stop for just a moment in your day, and you don't have to look back 10, but just 2 years, and see how much more different you were as a person, how much you have processed in the recent years, allowing yourself to be more healed, to be more of your true divine self in human form.

The same has happened to your collective as well. The events that are busting the system of control, would have not been able to manifest in the past 1 or 2 years, but since all of you have consciously removed yourself from the system of illusions, you have shattered the veil that has mesmerized the human race and held everyone locked up. Stop for a moment each day, and honor yourself, for we honor you, for all the challenges that you have overcome. In your culture you would receive medals for your selfless service to humanity, but we can only offer you our unconditional love, and our undying support.

Always stay centered in your Heart, and take good care of yourself for the storm is not over yet, but there is beautiful and sunny weather ahead. With much Love, your Sirius team,
A'ho Blessings.
