New Moon, New Self...

We greet you children of Light. May this moment represent a new stepping stone in your journey toward fulfillment of the Soul.

You have all come in to be fulfilled, by transforming all the difficulties of your life into peace of mind and of joy.

You may stand amidst a storm that is washing away the old way of life, but know that these circumstances do not need to affect you in a negative way. Take each challenge in your life, each difficulty that you face, take them and see them as an opportunity to grow and to flourish.

When you face difficult decisions and challenging circumstances, they are there to test you, so you may reflect on how you are doing, and to determine if you have truly managed to overcome the patterns that were holding you back.

You may have noticed that old patterns keep repeating themselves to a certain degree, even though theoretically you have already healed them. You are a complex multi dimensional being, and there are many layers to You. You span lifetimes and dimensions, bringing all into one, into this singular, now moment, creating this life experience.

You may not be fully aware of all your facets that span across the multiverse, and know that you don't have to. Everything is functioning as it was intended to, and your job, as you would say, is to focus on this very moment that you are having right now. Be present and aware of yourself each moment, this is how you can stay in your core, for this is your center of power.

When you are facing the old patterns, be not afraid, for you are merely processing the same pattern on a different level. The difficulties that you have in your lives have not been created over the span of a few days, thus they may need an equal amount of time to be transmuted.

This applies to your personal life and also to your collective consciousness. The human race has been experiencing oppression and dissociation from self, on all levels imaginable.

Some have fallen far from The Light, while others were able to achieve attainment and shown the way to like minded souls.

Earth is a rich soil, a powerful school for all souls, and now you are working out all of the loose ends that may still potentially hold you in the lower timelines. Know that not all wish to book tickets for the New Earth ride, and that is perfectly alright. Evolution has always been about choice, and what is happening now is no different.

All souls who wish to shed their old skin and move on into a higher timeline may do so with more ease, for all of the energies that are present in your world are facilitating the shift in perfect alignment.

All of the turmoil and confusion that you are experiencing on a collective level is due to resistance.

Just as there are beings in your world who do not wish to let go of the old way, there are also parts of you who can experience similar resistance. You are a multi-layered cosmic being, and parts of you still need some readjustment in order to be properly tuned, so you can have a smooth ride into the next phase.

You have worked through a lot of baggage in this life, and you continue to do so, thus we recommend that you rest and reflect as often as you can in the coming period.

Reflect on the changes that you have experienced outside, and of course, within. Rest, and enjoy the rejuvenating energies of the coming season. Mother Nature is providing you with all the necessary energies to be able to cleanse your body and mind.

Cleanse yourself of all the density and embrace the new Solar energies that are reaching your world as we speak.

Stay present and grounded, for the show is not over yet, but the dramatic ups and downs are starting to subside, allowing all of you to reach more clarity.

With that we leave you, be well.
A'ho Blessings.
